

Inspiration and Namesake

Dr. Lionel Kelland died in 2010 at home in Grand Falls-Windsor, NL at the age of 58. He suffered from a terminal illness and dying at home was his choice. As a family physician, he had observed that our current health care system does not deliver end of life care very well; an opinion shared amongst his colleagues within the community of local health professionals. Dr. Kelland was now on the receiving end of something he and his colleagues had concluded was a defective delivery of a much-needed service.
